

ABSTRACT

An anchor shovel has an articulated shoveling part which is orientable by way of removable clips which allow for detachment of the shovel part from the handle part. Once detached, the shovel part can be reattached in its new configuration in relation to the handle which changes its function which is either to be a shovel, an anchor or compact and folded for transport.